Camp Overview

Virginia Rules Camp is a law-themed summer experience first initiated by the Virginia Attorney General’s Office in 2004. In addition to offering Richmond young people a healthy way to spend a week in the summer, the day camp provides interactive instruction on Virginia’s laws.

In the past, this camp has been hosted by the Attorney General’s Office, in partnership with the Richmond Police Department and the Boys and Girls Clubs of Metro Richmond. However, law enforcement agencies and interested civic organizations throughout the state are encouraged to replicate the camp in their own jurisdictions.

The camp curriculum is based on Virginia Rules, the state-specific education program which places particular emphasis on how laws apply to middle and high school students in their everyday lives. Instructors can choose from over 20 lessons provided on the Virginia Rules website, all of which come complete with worksheets, handouts, and supplemental materials.

Through the years, Virginia Rules Camp has proved successful in educating young people about Virginia’s laws, helping them develop the necessary skills to make sound decisions, and teaching them to recognize the consequences of their actions.

“Even those youth who were skeptical about the experience find themselves engaged in camp activities. By the end of the week, they are bonding with their teammates and counselors. This is a tremendous opportunity to watch even the shyest kids come out of their shells, find their voices, and make new friends from other parts of the city - all while enjoying the great outdoors. Virginia Rules Camp provides a unique environment for young people to learn how to make good decisions for their future.”

Camp Curriculum

Virginia Rules Camp is built around old-fashioned, outdoor summer fun, so kids enjoy activities such as swimming, fishing, canoeing, hiking, and archery. Every day, a lesson is taken from the Virginia Rules curriculum, which is unique in that students not only learn about laws, but also learn how to apply these laws in their own lives.

Virginia Rules evolved from the success of Virginia’s Class Action Program, initiated in 1996. Now that the Class Action program has become the Virginia Rules program – complete with its own how-to website – the law enforcement curriculum is easy to reproduce in schools and summer camps throughout the Commonwealth.

The Virginia Rules curriculum includes instruction on the following topics:

- Drugs
- Gangs
- Bullying
- Keeping a driver’s license
- Teens and violence
- Dating violence
- Alcohol and tobacco
- Technology
- Property crimes
- Crimes against people
- Laws
- Judicial system
- Juvenile justice system
- Courtrooms
- Victims’ rights
- Criminal law basics
- Civil law basics
- Student responsibilities
- Family relationships and the law
- Teens and crime prevention
- Child labor laws

“The curriculum is very appropriate. It’s all those things kids could be introduced to at this age, and we have open conversations. We wear plain clothes, so they don’t even think of us as police officers. Every year we divide them into teams and they pick a topic for a skit. They work on it all week and then present the skit at the end of the week. I think what they learn in those skits sticks with them more than anything.”

Sarah Powell, Detective

Camp Staff

Virginia Rules Camp staff is made up of volunteers. Over the years, instructors have included community police officers, seasoned homicide detectives, school resource officers, truancy officers, and patrol officers. The vast majority return to teach camp year after year, though there are always new faces.

The instructors say they love working at this camp. In so many cases, the only interaction police officers have with young people is when a problem arises and they must respond to the call. Therefore, this positive, pro-active experience provides a different perspective to both the officers and the kids. Staff members say they like the feeling of giving back to their community and forming positive relationships.

“I have been volunteering at this camp for years, and it is one of the highlights of my summer – so much so that I plan my own vacation around it. I still love seeing how some of these kids bloom after their first day. I love watching children go home with a smile, after I’ve been working with them all day; it makes my time at camp worthwhile. Personally, I have met great friends and co-counselors at camp and have remained friends with many of these folks for years.”

Esther Anderson
VOLUNTEER STAFF MEMBER

“We have a great time working with the youth attending camp. They say it is the best week of their lives. They have had fun working up an appetite – and they’ve done all this while learning great life lessons and building bonds with members of the Richmond Police Department.”

John Buturla, Deputy Chief
CITY OF RICHMOND
POLICE DEPARTMENT
Campers

Rising sixth through ninth graders are at the ideal age to benefit from Virginia Rules Camp. While most young people are out of school for the summer, many have little to keep them busy. At no cost to the parents, Virginia Rules Camp offers these kids positive outdoor experiences, companionship, and an early opportunity to make healthy choices in their lives. Some 80-140 campers attend every year.

According to the staff, two types of kids arrive on the first day of camp. One group is slightly reserved and anxious. These young people may be attending solo, or they may have come with a friend or sibling. The second group is energetic, smiling, and happy to greet previous counselors and friends. These are the repeat campers, delighted to return for another year.

Both groups have much in common. They have caring adults who have agreed to send them to camp. Here they meet people who live outside their neighborhoods. They get to know police officers, counselors, and a variety of volunteers ready to provide them with a meaningful experience. And at the end of the week, they return home having enjoyed an old-fashioned summer camp, supervised by caring adults and positive role models.

“I was glad to be around a lot of old friends from where I used to live. I was very excited to do some of the things I normally would not get to do in the city. I especially liked talking with the K-9 and horse officers.”

Ma'khie Wicker

“This was my first year at summer camp. I enjoyed it because I met a lot of new people. They kept me occupied with fun and challenging activities. It was also a great learning experience.”

Darrell Anderson

“It was a rewarding experience – very exciting and a lot to do. I'm looking forward to being a counselor this year.”

For managing large groups of campers, plan for teams to have multiple activities on the same day. For example: on Tuesday, at 9:30, team one goes fishing, team two goes canoeing and team three goes hiking. The next day, each team switches to a different activity.
Preparation Check-List

This sample is intended for a one-week day camp held in August.

Pre-Camp Activities

APRIL
- Determine lead sponsoring agency
- Determine sponsoring partners
  Example: Boys and Girls Clubs, police department. It is helpful if this agency can cover campers under its liability insurance policy.
- Determine location
  Try to use an existing camp facility already set up for multiple activities.
- Determine dates
- Determine budget

MAY
- Determine camper selection criteria
- Determine number of campers
- Determine hours of camp
- Refine budget
- Prepare an alternate plan in case of inclement weather

JUNE
- Prepare camper registration forms
  Attach any necessary waivers.
- Determine deadline for registration form to be returned to lead agency
- Determine camp staff members from lead and partner agencies
- Solicit volunteer staff members
- Determine portions of the Virginia Rules curriculum to be used
  Three to five lessons are ideal for a five-day camp.
- Solicit donations from local organizations
  Gift cards are a frequent donation.
  Use them to purchase food, water, ice, and supplies.
- Determine give-aways for outstanding campers
  Place a logo, name, and/or date of Camp on give-aways. This not only helps advertise the camp, but also allows returning campers to demonstrate their veteran status.
- Design and order camp T-shirts
  Use a logo, name, and/or date of Camp. Choose a bright color such as yellow, orange, or green. Estimate sizes needed for both campers and counselors. Order sizes as noted on camper and volunteer registration forms.
- Book transportation for campers to and from camp
- If facility has a pool, secure a lifeguard
- Research and obtain any necessary permits

JULY
- Conduct criminal background checks on all staff members and volunteers
- Set daily camp schedule
- Choose team leaders and assistant leaders
- Divide campers into groups, assigning an adult team leader to each group
- Determine teacher and location for daily Virginia Rules lesson
- Print Virginia Rules lesson plans, hand-outs, and tests
- Determine and purchase supplies
- Determine and purchase food and beverages
  Daily breakfast, lunch, and snack are recommended. Have water and Gatorade on hand. Overestimate water consumption. Ask for provisions from the local food bank and cooking assistance from local organizations.
- Visit the camp site in person
- Invite guest speakers
  One per day is recommended. Good choices are the local sheriff, chief of police, Commonwealth’s Attorney, youth leaders, or others who can talk about choices they’ve made which have helped them succeed.
- Plan a daily agenda of camp activities, broken down by teams
- Advise the local Emergency Medical Services agency of the dates and times of the camp
- Develop format for the final skit, which will highlight lessons learned about Virginia Rules
- Secure emergency contact numbers for each camper
  This information should also include any medical conditions or allergies
- Consider providing campers with backpacks on the last day of camp
  These can be filled with school supplies.
- Camp Week Activities

FIRST DAY
- Sign in campers, give them their team numbers, and direct them to where their team is sitting
- Have counselors introduce themselves to their assigned campers
- Have camp leader welcome campers and discuss camp rules and expectations
- Administer Virginia Rules pre-test for “The Big Lie,” show the video, and then give the post-test

EVERY DAY
- Campers are greeted and sign in
- Volunteers serve breakfast while camp leaders conduct a morning meeting for everyone in attendance
- Campers break out in teams for activities
- Counselors offer campers sunscreen and bug spray
- Volunteers serve lunch on schedule
- Campers participate in all activities, including after-meal clean-up
- Staff members make sure campers stay properly hydrated
- Counselors lead campers through their daily activities, making adjustments if some activity runs overtime
- Team leaders administer a pre-test before and a post-test after the Virginia Rules topic instruction for the day
  Packets for each team leader should include sharpened pencils. Designate location where packets should be returned at the end of each lesson
- Staff members provide mid-afternoon snacks and drinks
- Staff members sign out all campers individually and make sure they board their assigned buses
- Require the bus drivers to take roll as well

LAST DAY
- Provide each camper with a certificate of completion
- Give each volunteer a recognition certificate
- Assign someone to compile a list of all sponsors, donors, and volunteers

UPON COMPLETION
- Compare Virginia Rules pre- and post-tests to gauge effectiveness of training
- Report results at www.virginiarules.org
- Gather up all leftover materials and salvage as many supplies as possible
- Check site and buildings for any damage
- Provide evaluation forms to all counselors
- Meet to discuss accomplishments, problems, and plans for next year
  All agencies and participants should be present
- Send thank-you letters to all volunteers, counselors, and participating agencies
